Armed Services Expansion Bills Up Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bills that will let the armed services buy 60,000 missiles, 3,000 airplanes and 43 ships, and pave the way for Army induction of an estimated 90,000 men next year, face roll call votes in the House next week.

The two key defense measures—a four-year extension of the draft law and a record $15.8 billion military authorization bill—are due on the House floor Monday and Tuesday.

The House Armed Services Committee unanimously approved the draft bill, saying "its enactment is essential to our national security."

The induction authority runs out July 1. The bill would extend it until July 1, 1967.

The measure also would keep in effect a 13-year-old suspension of statutory ceilings on the size of the armed services. If that expired, the services would have to cut more than 600,000 men. "It is clear that this section of the law must be extended," the committee report said.

The Army estimates it will draft about 90,000 men during each of the next four fiscal years. And the committee said that without the draft voluntary enlistments would drop far below their present levels.

The military authorization bill may stir controversy when it comes up Tuesday. That measure includes $363.7 million to step up development of the 2,000-mile-an-hour RS70 reconnaissance strike plane.

The administration wants to hold that program at its present level, which calls for construction of three of the speedy planes. The committee, headed by Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., insists five RS70s should be built.

Politician Named Premier Of Syria After Army Coup

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The Revolutionary Council in Damascus announced today veteran politician Salah Bitar has been named premier of Syria in the wake of an army coup d'etat staged by officers friendly to Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Bitar was a minister in the United Arab Republic cabinet when Syria and Egypt were joined as one nation. He quit, however, before the final split two years ago and has maintained his support for Syrian independence.

The new rulers claimed complete control of the turbulent country and proclaimed today a national holiday. They said the coup took place without bloodshed.

There were reports of scattered resistance within Syria, but the country's borders were sealed and it was impossible to check them. Iraq sent troops to the Syrian border and said it would fight to prevent any interference with the new government.

Both Egypt and Iraq warned other countries to keep hands off American sources said all U.S. citizens in Damascus were safe. Nasser, in Cairo issued a statement saying his government's support for the new Syrian regime "has no limits" and told its leaders, "We await your instructions." Egypt granted diplomatic recognition.

A new 20-man cabinet was announced in Syria at dawn today. Bitar, its chief, is believed to favor continued Syrian independence with close ties to Egypt and also to the revolutionary government in Iraq.

Bitar is the leader of the moderate wing of the Arab Baath Socialist Party. This is a multi-national party in the Arab world and the group which recently staged the Iraqi revolution.

House Gets Six Spending Bills

LANSING (AP)—Six appropriations bills calling for spending roughly in line with Gov. George Romney's proposed 1963-64 budget were introduced Friday in the House.

Five of the bills call for outlays of some $182.5 million for general government, welfare, public safety and defense, regulatory functions and conservation-recreation-agriculture.

The sixth would provide for spending some $246.4 million in restricted, or earmarked, funds from revenues to be taken in by the Highway Department and other agencies.

Also included in appropriations dropped into the hopper Friday by the House Ways and Means Committee is a fixed $15.7 million figure for debt service, for which no bill is required.

"Our bills closely follow the governor's recommendations in his $447 million budget," said Ways and Means Chairman Arnell Engstrom, R-Traverse City.

"There are some changes and there are some figures held out until certain legislation is passed."

Among changes from Romney's spending plan is an increase of $2 million in welfare outlay, chiefly the result of climbing costs of the Kerr-Mills Medical Care to Aged Program, which is difficult to estimate.

The governor had asked $96.8 million for welfare, while the committee bill calls for $98.8 million. This is an increase of some $4.4 million over current spending.

Other changes are in the general government appropriation, in which the committee cut an estimated pay increase for civil service employees from Romney's $4.5 million to $4 million and combined it with the overall general government figure of $32.2 million. Romney had proposed it as a separate appropriation.

Tax Slash May Be Factor To Delay Recession

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's economists do not foresee another recession before 1964 or 1965, even if Congress fails to cut taxes this year.

They do believe, however, that the decision on the proposed 1963 tax reduction might make the difference between an upturn and a downturn when the economy finally moves off its present high "plateau."

The President caused a ripple of alarm among businessmen last month when he began selling his $10 billion tax reduction plan as a recession-preventative. Until then, his argument was that it would supply a needed spur to economic growth.

The uneasiness was heightened this week when the February employment report showed joblessness had climbed from an unsatisfactory 5.8 per cent of the labor force to an even more unsatisfactory 6.1 per cent, highest in 14 months.

Other indexes have charted a so-so winter record, with strong demand for new cars offsetting some distinct weak spots. Industrial output has slogged along almost unchanged since last spring. Exceptionally bitter winter weather apparently explained part of the February rise in outdoor unemployment.

But there's enough possibility of a recession this year, most economists agree, to justify the threat of a downturn as an argument for early tax reduction. Kennedy made the most of it in telling a recent news conference that failure to cut taxes "substantially increases in the chance of a recession."

But he has stated more recently, "I am not predicting a recession for 1963," and reliable sources say this is definitely the view of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Well sustained consumer demand, plus record corporate profits and sign of some pickup in business spending on plant, and inventories suggest a continued modest advance, government economists report.

On the other hand, they see no sign of a strong upsurge in any segment of the economy.

World's Largest Dynamite Factory Blows In Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—The world's largest dynamite factory blew up today with four tremendous roars at Modderfontein, 16 miles from here. Company officials said casualties were miraculously low.

The blasts shook people from their beds as far away as Johannesburg. They caused the death of a sleeping woman 11 miles away, the South African Press Association reported.

A company announcement said one white worker was known dead and that four or five nonwhites were missing.

The South African Press Association said earlier that first reports had indicated 35 to 45 persons were killed.

One official reported 18 white and nine nonwhite workers injured.

The news agency reported the blasts dislodged bricks in a home in the Kensington suburb, 11 miles from Modderfontein. The bricks cascaded onto an African servant as she lay in her bed, killing her, the agency added.

A police statement broadcast by Radio South Africa said there was no evidence of sabotage. South African police have been battling increasing sabotage, touched off by opponents of the segregationist government.

But, police said, they could not determine the cause of the explosions immediately.

The company said it did not know how many of its 4,000 workers were in the factory. Presumably only a skeleton night crew was working at the time. The firm is a subsidiary of Harry Oppenheimer's huge Anglo-American Corp., a mining combine. It makes explosives for South Africa's gold mining industry.

The entire area was evacuated because of fear of new explosions. Police with dogs ringed the area and refused to let anyone through their lines.

The company reported four shops were destroyed, including a nitroglycerine washing house.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk tells a news conference that there is some movement of Soviet troops out of Cuba. The Russians have promised that "several thousand" will be sent home next week. (AP Wirephoto)

Thousands Sail Home This Week, Kremlin Claims

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union has renewed its promise that between now and next weekend several thousand Russian troops will be sailing home from Cuba.

Soviet Ambassador Anatoly S. Dobrynin put the pledge publicly on the record late Friday.

"I have already mentioned to Secretary Rusk that we will withdraw several thousand troops... We will do what we promised we will do," he told newsmen at the State Department.

Earlier in the day the secretary of state had told a news conference that the outflow of Russian soldiers from Cuba was already under way and enough Russian ships are moving to Cuba to carry out the several thousand military men.

Moving Too Slowly How many is "several thousand?" Neither Rusk nor Dobrynin would be more specific.

Washington first got word from the Kremlin last month that it intended to withdraw several thousand troops by mid-March.

Moscow, according to a Feb. 21 White House announcement, identified the personnel to be withdrawn as the troops who had guarded offensive weapons, plus some specialists who have been training Cubans.

Since then there have been reports of Russians leaving Cuba and some government sources said it appeared that a few troops were leaving each day. But on Wednesday President Kennedy said at a news conference the withdrawal was moving too slowly to please him.

U.S. authorities have estimated there were 22,000 Russian military personnel—including technicians—in Cuba at the peak of the crisis last fall.

About 17,000 Remain About 5,000 Russians were reported to have left with the removal of Soviet offensive missiles and bombers, leaving—according to Washington's count—about 17,000.

The U.S. position is that there should be no Russian military personnel in Cuba. But for now, Washington is concentrating on the current withdrawal.

Rusk said the U.S. government would make an assessment "somewhat later" as to just what the current withdrawal amounts to.

Meanwhile, words were still flying in Congress over Cuba past, present and future. And Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield tried to stem some of them. He urged senators Friday to weigh their words and judge whether they might "help drive the people and the President toward war."

He referred to what he called a "macabre fixation" over the reports of four Americans being killed in the unsuccessful 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion and described it as "political prowling over the dead."

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen, replying to Mansfield, said there was no wonder the confirmation of the four American deaths had led the people "to conjecture what is the truth and what did happen."

Urging that all the facts be put on the table, Dirksen said he didn't like "to see a gap in contemporary history."

Peking Lampoons India Communists

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China today lampooned the Indian Communist party, and in particular its chairman, Shripad Amri Dange.

Quoting from Lenin's writings as a preacher would quote the Bible, the Chinese Communists have in rapid succession virtually excommunicated the French, Italian, American and now Indian Communists.

They left no doubt that through all these attacks, the chief target was Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Peking's fury was prompted by a letter Dange sent to Prime Minister Nehru on Nov. 14, 1962—after the Chinese launched their border invasion. It "sides with the Indian reactionaries and violently opposes Socialist China," Peking People's Daily said.

Battle Brewing In Lansing Over Jobless Benefits

LANSING (AP)—A new partisan battle is brewing in the House over a package of Republican-sponsored proposals to revamp the state's unemployment compensation laws.

They were branded as "dangerous legislation" by Democrats when they came up over debate Friday and were put over until Tuesday under a "gentlemen's agreement" between Democratic and GOP leaders.

The agreement was made, they said, because the bills deserve full debate and because Democrats wanted a series of proposed amendments to be printed before the issue goes to a showdown.

Rep. Riemer Van Til, R-Holland, chairman of the House Labor Committee and chief sponsor of the seven-bill package, said it is designed to restore original legislative intent to language of the laws.

He told House members earlier that the language had been "eroded, corroded and corrupted" over the years by appeal board and court interpretations in compensation cases.

The bills would: —Prohibit payment of both unemployment compensation and workmen's compensation to disabled workers, with unemployment payable if greater.

—Provide that persons who lose jobs because they are in jail are not entitled to unemployment compensation benefits.

—Stiffen requirements for proof of legal dependents and force the Employment Security Commission to set down regulations on such proof.

—Revise provisions for determining "suitability of work" under which they are considered "available."

—Provide that referees have jurisdiction over all matters involved in an appeal case.

—Stipulate that employers need not pay both unemployment compensation and retirement benefits to employees who retire while laid off and drawing compensation.

The bills are similar to measures introduced in recent years by Republicans. Some passed both houses and were vetoed in the governor's office, others failed to muster enough votes to pass.

A challenge to Gov. Romney to state his position on the bills was issued Friday by Rep. Joseph Kowalski, D-Detroit, House minority leader, on behalf of the House Democrats.

"We will attempt to amend these bills and if we fail, we will vote to defeat them," said Kowalski. "They are completely contrary to the purposes of the Michigan Employment Security Act."

Russians Claim First TV in 1911

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union observed the 25th anniversary of its television Friday and claimed the world's first TV transmission was made by a Russian scientist in 1911.

The Tass news agency said the Soviet Union has 100 television centers and reaches 90 million people; that by 1965 Soviet TV will reach 120 million viewers through 180 centers.

The newspaper Izvestia said the world's first transmission of a television image by a cathode-ray tube was achieved by Russian scientist Boris Rosing May 9, 1911.

Boys, 15, Stand Trial In Killing

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit police say they will seek to have two 15-year-old boys tried as adults for the fatal shooting of druggist Charles V. LeFevre, 62, in his East Side store last Tuesday.

Wayne County Assistant Prosecutor Helen Bryant said Garnell Gullege admitted the shooting Friday night after a companion, Stanley Grimes, named him as the killer.

Mrs. Bryant said Gullege told her he shot LeFevre when the druggist overpowered Grimes in an attempt to foil the youths' hold-up attempt.

Grimes surrendered to police Thursday night in the company of his mother and a priest. He first admitted the shooting, then changed his story and named Gullege as the killer, police said.

Gullege was brought here Friday night from Boys Vocational School in Lansing where he had been returned Thursday after escaping. Gullege was first sentenced to BVS on Oct. 24, 1961 and was paroled Sept. 21, 1962.

He was returned there as a parole violator on Dec. 27, 1962, and escaped March 1 of this year.

Fresh-Dyed Hair Traps Holdup Man

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—James W. Chesney, 19, told Doris Smith, operator of a beauty salon, that he wanted his blond hair dyed black.

She said he'd have to wait. He waited, had his hair dyed, then took $140 from her cash register, Miss Smith told police.

Chesney was arrested later at a casino and booked for investigation of robbery. Police said he was easily recognized. His newly-dyed black hair gave him away.

Boy Sniper, 15, Put In Hospital

PONTIAC (AP)—Oakland County Probate Judge Donald Adams Friday ordered a 15-year-old boy who has admitted the sniper-slaying of his mother committed to the Pontiac State Hospital.

Adams signed commitment papers for Douglas Godfrey after a mental health hearing.

The boy admitted shooting his mother, Mrs. Mary Godfrey, 38, last Jan. 25. Mrs. Godfrey was shot as she stood at the kitchen window of her Bloomfield Township home.

Police said Douglas told them he shot his mother because she was too strict and nagged at him. Adams ruled Wednesday the boy should not stand trial as an adult for the shooting. He signed Friday at the request of the boy's father, Donald H. Godfrey.

Douglas will remain at the Oakland County Juvenile home until there is bed space at the state hospital. He was ordered confined to the hospital for psychiatric treatment.

Lemon Balls Sent From California To N.Y. Governor

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller Friday received a "tongue-in-cheek" gift from California Gov. Edmund F. Brown—15 pounds of lemon sour balls in a redwood box.

Brown, a Democrat, explained in a letter to New York's top Republican that the gift was "a sort of consolation prize" because California now claims to be first in population, the place long held by New York, though the figures are in dispute.

Brown also included five pounds of candy kisses to take the sting out of the gift and wished Rockefeller "a very sweet future."

Flash Fire Traps Students; 44 Hurt

BELLPORT, N.Y. (AP)—"The kids behind were screaming and pushing," David Hassell said. "I was terrified."

From a bed crowded into a hospital corridor the 18-year-old senior described the panic of a flash fire that trapped scores of students on the second floor of the Bellport High School Friday.

The state fire commissioner was sent from Albany to help investigate the blaze.

Hassell was shoved through a window and broke both kneecaps landing on a paved area.

The smoke, flames and frantic plunges to earth injured 44 students and a teacher. Injured critically were Hassell, John Allers, 13, and fireman Richard Harrow. They, plus 34 others, were in Brookhaven Memorial Hospital early today. The other 7 were treated and released.

Sunday Closing Law Voted Down By County Board

The Delta County Board of Supervisors by a vote of 20-5 decided to exempt the county from the Sunday Closing Law, when they reconvened their meeting in the County Building Friday afternoon.

The action came after lengthy discussion by the supervisors both for and against the "Blue Law."

Supervisor Wesley Hansen said he felt the large food chain stores are considered "big league" and inasmuch as they are in the same category of business as the small operators should be given the same treatment, which he said could be accomplished by taking no action at all on the Closing Law. "By taking no action," said Hansen, "we will provide for more competitive conditions."

Strom Against Bill
Supervisor Walter Manntie of Rock was against the county adopting the law stating that he personally felt the law would only make law breakers out of innocent people. This he said would be accomplished because of the difficulty in enforcing the law and due to the temptation of merchants to sell merchandise they are not supposed to.

Attorney Nicholas P. Chapekis told board members that he had studied the law to some length and doubted whether or not it could even be considered a "closing" law. "My personal interpretation," he said, "is that the law only designates that certain items may or may not be sold on Sunday and the only way to determine whether or not merchants are abiding by the law is to practically have a police action."

Chairman of the Board, Wheaton Strom, stated he felt that religious freedom needs the jealous safeguard as much as it ever did. "I'm surprised that the State Legislature would pass such a law, to me it's just a package of candy, it takes something from everyone and it gives to many others. I think it's ridiculous that the legislature pass a law to give a day of rest to people in the food handling business and then, as I heard here today, make the restaurant people work harder," he said.

Discuss Dog Issue
"Recently the people have been voting 'no' with alarming rapidity. If we're going in for an ill-planned election we'll harm not only our own program, but other public issues in prospect as well," Strom said.

The board then decided to withdraw the proposal from the April election and present it to a vote of the people if and when the federal funds become available.

After lengthy discussion on the city and county's dog law problems the board appointed Sheriff Cully Johnson to look into the possibility of obtaining facilities where dogs could be kept for several days after they had been picked up by the dog warden.

Under the city ordinance a dog picked up must be held for a three-day period before destroying it. However, the county, which goes under the State Dog Law, is required to dispose of any dog found running loose.

Sheriff Johnson said that Hector Larson, the dog warden, is plagued with calls about stray dogs. Larson is only one man and can't be everywhere at once, the sheriff said, but still the calls keeps coming in.

"We've been fortunate so far in that no child has been seriously bitten. One of these days some child will be bitten and probably die of rabies, then ask yourself the question 'what's more important, a dog or a child,' the sheriff said.

Board members unanimously adopted a resolution commending Supervisor Walter Manntie of Rock for his excellent work during the past 22 years he has served on the county board. Manntie is retiring as a supervisor, and Friday's meeting was his last board function.

Dairy Marketing Bill Hearing Is Set For Tuesday

Delta area dairy manufacturers have been informed by William Jilbert, of the Jilbert Dairy, Calumet, president of the Upper Peninsula Dairy Manufacturers Association, that the House Agriculture Committee of the Legislature will hear the Fair Dairy Trade Bill next Tuesday.

Upper Peninsula dairymen plan a delegation to Lansing to testify for the bill in the hope that it be sent to the House floor for action.

The bill is similar to that vetoed two years ago by Governor Swainson. It would make illegal the selling of dairy products below cost to the retailer, secret discounts, equipment gifts and other trade gimmicks.

Weather Outlook Good For Trapping

If the weatherman's forecast for this month is correct, trappers should be greeted by conditions much to their liking when beaver and other seasons start Mar. 30 in the Upper Peninsula.

The month-long weather outlook calls for moderating temperatures ranging from average to slightly above, and a lower than usual amount of precipitation for this time of the year.

Snow depths are generally six to nine inches below last year in northern Michigan, and if temperatures warm up to cause gradual thawing, trappers should be able to count on stable water levels when the season opens arrive.

On the other side of the picture, ice covering lakes and ponds is considerably thicker than last winter in many areas.

If the spring breakup runs according to its expected form, beaver and otter will be quite active come late March, and trappers will probably have little trouble getting into areas where they plan to make their sets.

Generally speaking, trapping seasons and bag limits are more conservative than in 1962, allowing for population declines on an area-by-area basis.

In the Upper Peninsula, beaver numbers are down from a year ago, notably in Dickinson County, southern Iron County, and most of Marquette County where a closed season will be in effect.

Otter populations remain normal in the Upper Peninsula and the region's bag limit on these furbearers will again be three.

Mickey Moses Is On Honors List

"Grüezi," which means hello in Swiss, is sent to the many people of Delta County from the Rock 4-H Club. The club undertook a complete study of Switzerland recently as their "Passport to the World" project and the friendliness of the Swiss people has infiltrated the club. The sign which the girls are shown holding was made by the club members as were their costumes. (Larry Bradford Photo)

Rock 4-H Club Becomes Small Swiss Community

"Passport to the World," a study of people in other lands, has afforded the Rock 4-H Club many happy hours becoming better acquainted with the country of Switzerland. Members of the club were given an opportunity to choose from any country in the world, but chose Switzerland because they felt it was both picturesque and peaceful.

The idea of using this particular project for club participation was decided by Mrs. Albert Weldum of Rock, 4-H club leader, after she heard the subject discussed by Larry Bradford, county 4-H extension agent, during one of his radio broadcasts.

"I felt that inasmuch as there was an abundance of smaller projects like sewing, family living, personal improvements, etc. going on amongst smaller groups in the club, what was really needed was one project in which all the members could take part and this just seemed to fill the bill," she said.

Delve Into Project

Club members immediately took to the suggestion and began delving into assignments on the Swiss government, geography of the country, foods, people, clothing, customs, education, religion, industry, tourist attractions, transportation and communications.

Each of the 21 club members was given a specific phase of the study to complete and when finished had to give a report to the other club members.

"It's surprising," said Mrs. Weldum, "how many things you become conscious of once you have studied something about the country. We wrote to Swissair, the Swiss National Tourist Office, Swiss Consul and other places to obtain literature on the country."

In addition to obtaining literature on Switzerland the Rock 4-H Club also collected foods native of the country, made Swiss costumes, obtained Swiss records and learned Swiss songs.

Among the foods collected were Swiss omelette, Leek soup, Swiss cheese, etc.

To Visit Big Bay

Mrs. Weldum said that the girls became so interested in the country they wanted to learn some of the language. "After some research we manage to learn 'Guette Tag' which means good morning; 'Grüezi' for hello; and 'Bionda' which means blonde," she said.

In the future the club members plan to begin corresponding with pen pals in Switzerland and learn native dances.

"Of course," said Mrs. Weldum, "the fondest hope any of the girls has is that some day they can visit the Swiss country, but for now we plan to do the next best thing, visiting Big Bay in the Upper Peninsula where plans are underway to convert the settlement into an Alpine Village as a tourist attraction. Some of the older girls hope to spend the summer working there."

The club members were further informed about their Switzerland project through colored slides shown by Judy Kaminen. The slides were taken by her brother, Ronnie, while visiting Switzerland during his time in the service of the United States.

Show Theme Swiss

Mrs. Weldum said that once all the basic information was gathered by the club members written reports were made. These reports were compiled into a book which will be exhibited at their local style show. Needless to say the theme of the style show will pertain to Switzerland.

The girls in the club have already completed their Swiss costumes, which are worn to their meetings. In addition they also play Swiss records and are in the process of learning Swiss dances.

"All in all, the project has proven one of considerable enjoyment for the club members and certainly has helped to better understand the Swiss people and their country," said Mrs. Weldum.

Leaders helping with the Swiss project included Mrs. Ahti Waak, Mrs. Alrick Makkila, Mrs. Victor Mankiewicz and Mrs. Albert Weldum.

Public Works At Seney Refuge Is Continuing

The $250,000 Accelerated Public Works Project continues on the Seney National Wildlife Refuge with 34 men, hired from the local area, brushing, driving posts, and fencing the 52 mile boundary of the refuge.

Other work being planned or carried on includes construction of a visitor center at headquarters, a water control structure on A-1 pool, a self-guided tour route and several new picnic areas and canoe access trail to the Manistique River. Improvements in the nature trail are in progress, and island clearing to improve goose nesting habitat is complete in Unit 1.

Employees of the I. L. Whitehead Co. of Sault Ste. Marie are currently hauling 20,000 yards of gravel to a refuge stockpile for use in graveling the numerous roads, trails, and dikes.

Any contractors interested in bidding on the construction of the concrete block and brick visitor center or the reinforced concrete water control structure may obtain forms and specifications from the Seney National Wildlife Refuge, Seney, or from the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, 1006 W. Lake St., Minneapolis 8. Bids will be opened March 20 for the visitor center, and March 26 for the water control structure.

42 Scout Troops Reserve Camp For Summer Season

Hiawathaland Boy Scout Council Camping Chairman John M. Ohlson of Ishpeming announces that all campsites for the 1963 summer season at Camp Red Buck have been reserved by troops. A total of 42 troops have made preliminary reservations.

Cities from which one or more of the troops are registered include Newberry, Escanaba, Manistique, Paradise, Kincheloe AFB, Sault Ste. Marie, Gwinn, Rudyard, Munising, K. I. Sawyer AFB and St. Ignace.

Campsite reservations will continue to be made on a stand-by basis, Ohlson said.

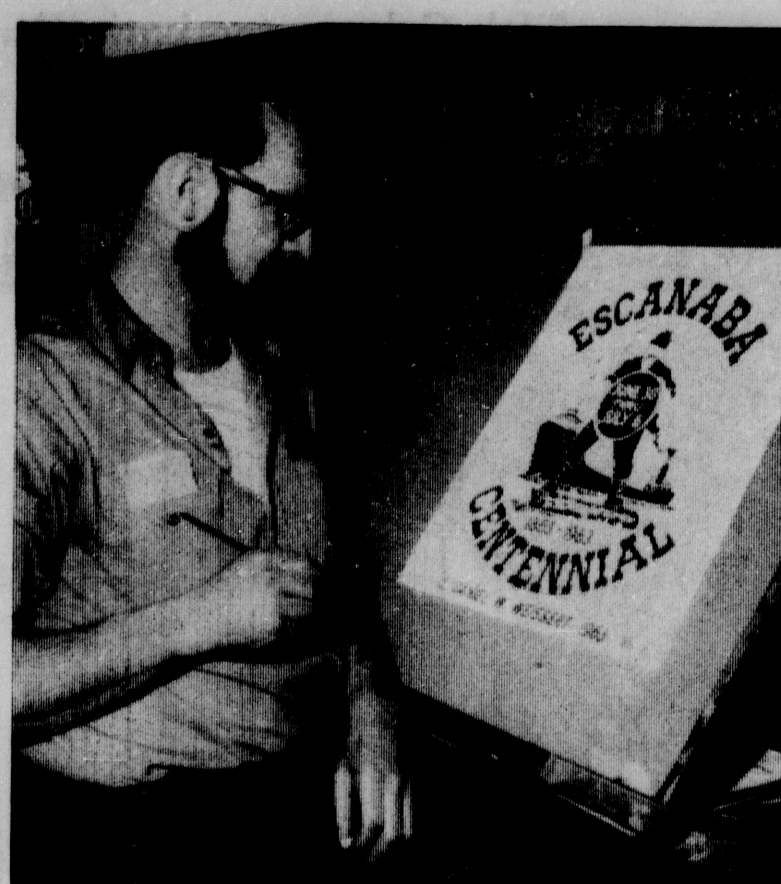

Scouters are planning a work day at the camp on Saturday, June 15.

The troop camping season will begin on July 7 and close on August 10 with almost all of last year's camp staff returning this season.

Weissert Designs Centennial Badge

The Escanaba Centennial has an official emblem.

Dan Weissert of the Provo Sign Co. of Escanaba created it and as it emerges in final form from several of his revisions to meet his judgment of what's best, it has been accepted by the Centennial Committee.

The insignie, suitable for decal and general emblematic use, has the label "Escanaba Centennial" divided between top and bottom and centrally it has a picture of a lumberjack log birler holding a log butt stamped "June 30 thru July 6." In the background is an ore carrier symbolizing Escanaba's famed port.

The emblem, said Weissert, was designed for use on photo albums, scrapbooks, T-shirts, sweatshirts, flags, ash trays, scarves, hankies and other Centennial mementoes.

He said it would also be used as theme of a 20x30 inch black on yellow flag with fringe that will be made available for purchase in the Centennial observance.

Merchants who want to use the emblem can contact the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce, or Weissert at Provo Sign Co. and a quick service of application will be offered.

A uniform cost of application has been established and the Centennial Committee will put its earnings from the processing into its fund for such expenses as street decoration for the Centennial.

Weissert said he hoped that taverns, restaurants, hotels, motels and gas stations would consider the emblem for use on tablecloths, aprons, shirts and decorations.

Weissert, of 330 N. 13th St. is a native of Escanaba and graduate of Escanaba High School in the Class of 1942. He started his career as a commercial artist during his student years as a co-operative trainee and has been with the Provo Sign Co. since 1943-46 when he served in the Army Engineers in World War II in Europe and Japan.

Lake Superior's Icefield Opening

SAWYER AFB—Following an almost complete freeze-over of Lake Superior, the warmer temperatures of the past two weeks have begun to break up the ice on the lake.

Officials of the 62nd Fighter Squadron, whose F-101 "Voodoo" fighter interceptors fly frequent missions over the lake, say that there is open water in Keweenaw Bay and near Munising. In addition, large areas along the north shore are breaking up. No channels have opened up in the immediate vicinity of Marquette.

Hospital Auxiliary

Danforth-Soo Hill unit of Delta Memorial Hospital met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Gunnar Mattson. Mrs. Clarence Schallack, newly elected president, presided. Plans were made for a white elephant sale to be held at the next meeting, tentatively planned for April 3 at the home of Mrs. John Rueleau. Lunch was served after the meeting.

Retarded Children School Fund Grows

Interest is growing daily in the campaign to raise funds to finance a school building for mentally retarded children of Delta County and will be spurred with appeals to "Buy a Brick" to complete the project.

Albert J. Valind, president of the Delta County Retarded Children's Association, said the "Buy a Brick" appeals are being made throughout the area. Cards carry the following message:

"Your donation will be used in the building of a school for the retarded children of Delta County."

Donations of either money or materials will be welcomed, said Valind. They can be addressed to the Delta County Retarded Children's Association, Box 157, Escanaba.

Donations have been received within the past few weeks from Northern Motor Rebuilders UAW-CIO Local 328 and management for $100, from UAW-AFL-CIO of Gladstone $25, Eagles Auxiliary $15.34, Altrusa Club of Escanaba $25, Leonard Shumaker $5, plus an additional $45 from Teamsters Local 328 which brings the Teamsters Danceorama total to $1,660.

With funds in the State Bank of Escanaba from the WDBC marches the grand total is now nearing the $9,000 mark, "for which the Association wishes to thank the public sincerely," said Valind.

"Ground will be broken as soon as possible at the Webster School site," said Valind. The site for the school building was the gift of the Escanaba Area Public Schools.

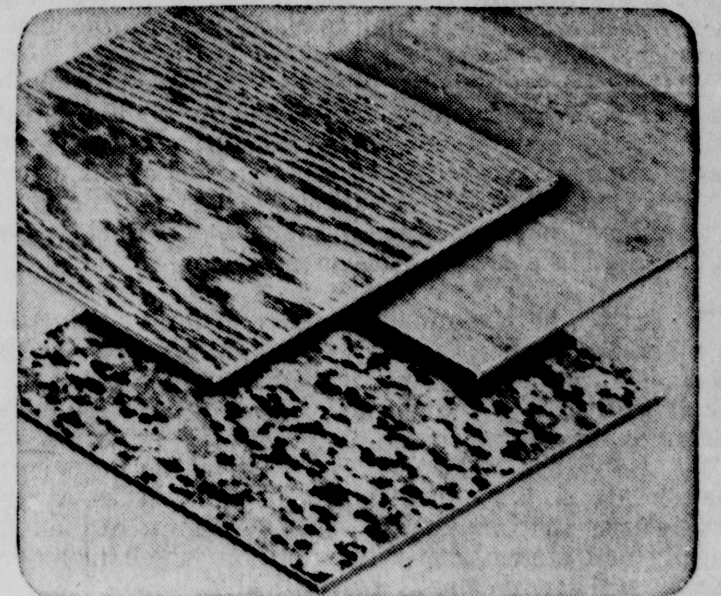

Project Pride committee wishes to start as soon as possible so available labor can be utilized in advance of the summer construction season.

Delights Of Winter

Late winter is a fine time of year in Upper Peninsula woodlands. For the gregarious it may lack something because if you want a chum you'd better bring him along; you're not apt to find him there. You're much more apt to find deer. They are not wary now; hunting is at a low time of the year because they are physically at their poorest, and they may stand and watch you while you watch them.

The snow is laced with tracks. The deer punch dainty holes in it and the porcupines drag their tummies so they leave a trench behind them, and the hares walk atop it on their big, furry feet and the coyotes and foxes can usually stay on top, too, at this time of year after thaws and crust- ing. The mice make tracks so dainty that they look like scratchings with a hypodermic needle and the grouse just can't walk a straight line, but leave a slightly dipsy track. The squirrels leave dainty tracks too and even if you didn't know the animal you'd know it was a bouncer and not a walker from the hippety-hop character of its autograph.

The waters are opening again and there's a dark spot in the middle of the larger streams in places to show it, sharply contrasted to the white of the snow cover. The little streams and the dry ravines are getting ready to leak their little contributions into the rivers of spring to create the excitement of the annual flood that flushes out the valley and sweeps the year's accumulation of flotsam down to the bay.

Outdoorsmen know that the winter is well along by many signs. The snow is one. If you slice down through it the biopsy shows its character. You can see the experiments that started in November at the bottom and the later falls, in varying depths, and the thaws. It's not as well defined a record as glacier ice, which can record centuries, but it is one of nature's short form ledgers and it definitely shows that spring is near now.

The trees show it too. Their buds are large again and while leafage still is distant, the process is making. The maples look red in the sunlight because of their budding and the tops of the paper birches show red too, as nature works with her pigments to make verdure. Some of the most spectacular landscapes of the year are to be seen now in the Northland.

Nowhere is there such sharply defined sylvan beauty as the aspens and our paper birches standing in their luminous lightness against the dark backdrop of the conifers. The tree greens are old and deteriorated now, at their lowest tincture of the year as they prepare to renew themselves with their Killarney magic. The cedars are olive, the firs are dark green and the spruces are blue.

The tamarcks wear moss and look like something misplaced by Dixie in the northern swamplands that the glaciers left. And where the woodcock will wet his feet later the ashes stand rubbery and strong with a fringework that is the most rubbly in northern forests. In the old stands the elms and sugar maples and pines stand so tall that they catch the golden light of evening after it has departed the under- story, so that night comes on from the ground up and does not drop from the skies.

The quiet of the woods is only relative. The junction of the Yellowdog and Hunter's Brook isn't as noisy as Broad- way and 42nd St., but it has its own accompaniment. A raven squawks and gargles. A deer stomps. A woodpecker drums. An owl calls for evening and coyotes practice a burst of yelping. To make it modern two trees rub out a discord.

The world of men seems very far away. The walker leaves a track in the snow and mutes "footprints in the sands of time." Evanescent, but more noticeable than a man's pas- sage on a city street where nothing of his movement endures even momentarily.

The forest is a classroom. Seen up close the trees are not perfect, as they appear from a distance. Like people. They struggle to survive and grow and many don't make it. The forest is a friendly, interesting place but it has not been found yet by many persons recreationally. City people prefer parks. They're all right for a starter, but they should encourage venture into the adult world of nature. Where are the descendants of Robin Hood?

Managing The News

The charges that the Kennedy administration seeks to "manage the news" needs to be put in some balance.

The President himself has taken a hand, trying to mini- mize the issue by treating it wittily — as he often does when under fire.

Yet there are few responsible newsmen in Washington and elsewhere who doubt that management of the news is taking place.

What has to be understood is that this is not something unique to President Kennedy. The Eisenhower administration practiced news control, as did the Roosevelt and Truman regimes before. In fact, this is a technique as old as memory.

Nor is it limited to the national government. Sleuthing reporters have been complaining about "invisible govern- ment" at the state level for decades.

The factitis both commonplace and old does not justify it. Within the limits dictated by security, the proper needs of diplomacy, and the effective operation of government, the public is entitled to know when its elected and appointed officials are doing and saying.

But the record of history, right up to the most current events, indicates that government officials have a strong self-protective instinct. They are not about to hand out gracefully and ungrudgingly information which in any way will damage them personally or politically.

They do not need, at the national level, to tell them- selves they are deliberately withholding information for these reasons. The great emphasis on defense and security gives them an easy way of rationalizing news control. On top of this, there is a natural tendency for men in office to believe they know better than anyone what is wise and proper and safe to disclose.

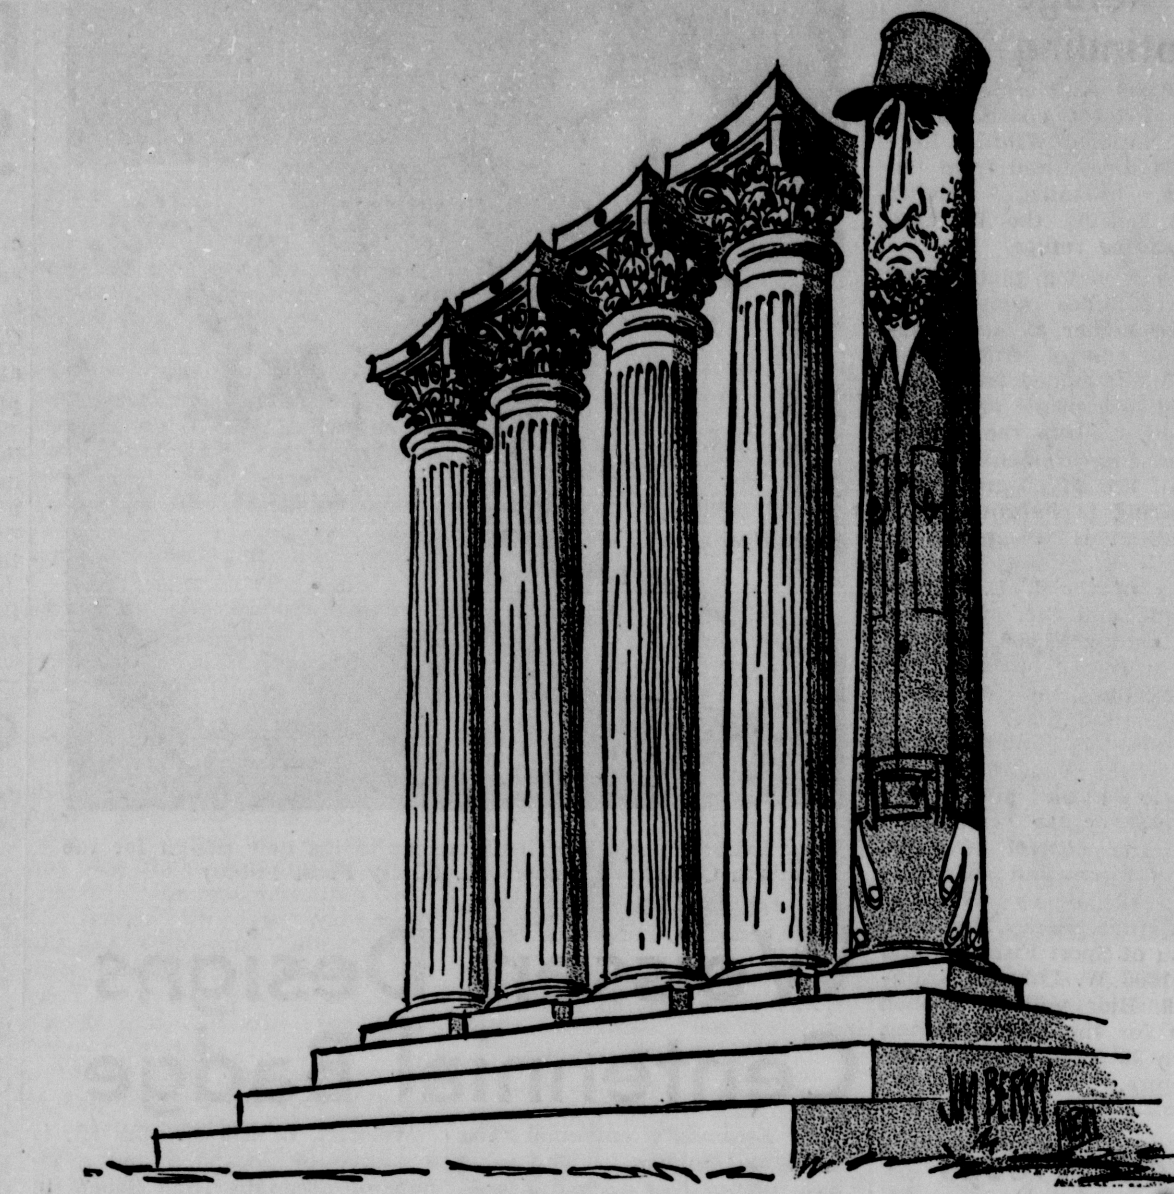

As a matter of fact, men in government are not the only ones who set themselves up as judges of what the public should know.

Giant business corporations, affected with a public in- terest to the extent that government concerns itself with their disputes, their pricing policies, and the like, are ex- tremely guarded in what they tell the public.

Their excuse, also often a rationalization, is that to dis- close too much may be to give valuable information to their competitors.

Few individuals or agencies deeply entwined in public affairs believe they have a duty to "tell all." In one degree or another, they all "manage the news" they take part in.

Where the Kennedy regime went astray was in openly vowing, even for one day, that news management was of- ficial policy. The retractions and denials, however humorously stated, probably will never catch up with that one.

Edson In Washington Memory Lane

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON — (N E A) — Complete confusion is about all that came out of a day-long dis- cussion of economic growth be- fore 200 of the nation's top busi- ness brains, assembled in Wash- ington by the American Bankers Assn.

ABA wanted some fresh ideas on this subject and it got them. Three of the country's most bril- liant young professors of eco- nomics were asked to present papers on the subject. They dis- agreed on practically everything. Gobbledygook hit the blowers and was spread knee-deep all over the place.

Paul W. McCracken, Universi- ty of Michigan Graduate School of Business Administration, quot- ed Arnold Toynbee to the effect that of 26 civilizations, 16 are dead, 9 have broken down and only 1 remains—ours. The histor- ical conclusion was that civiliza- tions break down not from outside pressures but from disin- tegration within. McCracken then pointed to the signs.

The number of patents issued and applied for, relative to the size of the economy, is lower now than in the 1920s. The number of new business concerns initiated is half that of the 20s.

"Even the smaller incidence of failures may be deceptively com- forting because this could merely indicate that the process of crea- tive destruction has become more sluggish," the professor said.

"Few things could perk up this economy so powerfully as an augmented flow of genuinely new products aimed straight at the American consumer," he con- cluded. Still, he wasn't pessimis- tic.

Paul A. Samuelson, Massachu- setts Institute of Technology, crashed through with a 21-point program on what the country should do to achieve economic growth.

It was so long and detailed that he didn't have time to read it. But it is all in his text and it goes way beyond anything President Kennedy offers in the way of government aid to pri- vate business and social welfare.

Oversimplified, here are some Samuelson ideas: More public expenditure to reduce the risk of private investments. Permit as- sets to be depreciated on a base that is inflated with the price level. Change from a system of graduated income taxes to consumption and wealth taxes. Give temporary tax cuts to sluggish in- dustries.

On monetary and fiscal poli- cies, Samuelson's recommenda- tions were so complex they defy simplification. He himself got all mixed up in them. His text read, "... American policy should be to alter the parity of the dollar." But when asked about this later he said, "I would not favor de- valuation."

At the end of his paper, Sam- uelsson wrote this as his final apology: "I wish I could have come here and promised that balancing the budget, preserving monetary discipline, reducing government expenditures and busting the monopoly powers of labor unions would usher in an era of growth and prosperity without inflation or tears. It was not my heart that kept me from doing so. It was my head and my fear of being in violation of the laws of fraud."

George W. Stigler, professor of American Institutions at Universi- ty of Chicago and president- elect of the American Economic Assn., with rare sense of humor, took completely opposite views.

"I am not greatly concerned about the growth rate of the American economy," he admitted right at the start, "whether judged in terms of national survival, domestic happiness or internation- al benevolence."

It was his view that science was vastly overrated and that the American supermarket has meant more to American economic pro- gress than atomic energy. He thinks mergers are good. He doesn't fear head-on collisions between business and govern- ment regulation because regula- tion is ineffective when the in- dustry doesn't wish to be regu- lated.

"I am suggesting," he said, "than an efficient economy re- quires discontented businessmen, outraged labor leaders and frus- trated bureaucrats."

Stigler refused to present any list of recommendations to pro- mote economic growth, but he made a prophecy on what might happen if a set of policies could be devised to raise output 10 per cent per capita for the future:

"Then, in the well-known year 1984, average family income would be $64,000 before taxes, and the average family would be a millionaire."

Finding The Way

Cast The Net Again

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D. D.

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

There is nothing amazing in the fact that we get tired. The New Testament reports a night of bad fishing after which the men were tired. They were washing their nets and grumbling as tired people have a habit of doing. These were the men whom Jesus challenged to go fishing again. They took the dare, and came home excited be- cause they had had success.

We might remember that just now. Why keep on trying for nuclear disarmament? Why try to negotiate for peace? Why try to end racial and ethnic tensions. Try and of these and you're bound to get tired.

● It doesn't take much of a person to get tired. It DOES take a person of great faith to be per- sistently adventurous.

● It doesn't take much of a church to be tired. It DOES take a church of great faith to be creatively adventurous.

● It doesn't take much of a country to get tired. It DOES take a nation of great faith to be morally adventurous.

If we expect leaders of the nations to continue to talk instead of blowing up the planet, we ought to keep at it locally. There are enough racial, ethnic and social situations in any neighborhood to keep us talking and working. There are enough defeats to be tempted to quit trying. Why keep on fishing for a big idea, when you have little to show for it but empty nets?

And yet, it has been that brave company in every generation who lose themselves in the greatness of the cause, who make one forget to be tired. These can be wearying days, with enough to make us cry in despair, "Why fish?"

Those men who fished for jus- tice and truth and honor in other generations have made it possible for us to know something of their victories in our own time.

If we're too tired—or morally tired and apathetic—to worship or pray, or to work with our neighbor in trying to solve a difficult prob- lem, then there's little to do but try to escape in some form of for- getfulness. Either that — or the faith which requires trust and

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: We just returned from our honeymoon and I'm so mad smoke is curling out of my ears!

After my husband and I left the wedding dinner my in-laws stopped the orchestra, got up on the platform and announced the engagement of their daughter.

My parents spent a fortune to put on one of the loveliest weddings this town has ever seen. I think it was just horrible of my in-laws to take advantage of the occasion to move their own daughter into the spotlight.

A friend of mine even made the comment that my in-laws were very clever to announce their daughter's engagement at our wedding because it saved them the price of an engagement party.

I am eager to get along with my husband's family, but after this galling incident I'm not sure it's worth the effort. Please tell me what you think of this sneaky little maneuver.—J. S.

Dear J. S.: Announcements of this type are often made at gala events. There's nothing unusual about it. But it should not be sprung as a surprise on the host and hostess. As a matter of courtesy your in-laws should have asked for permission to make the announcement.

Since it's over and done with, forget it. It's not worth a four-door family fight.

Dear Ann: You were so right in your answer to that numbskull who believes all women who work nights are running away from their family responsibilities and whooping it up with the boys.

I am one of those "bimbos" as he calls us, who works the night shift. My job is dispatcher for the police department. If nobody would agree to work at night, she and millions of other citizens would be in a heck of a fix.

Of course I'd prefer daylight hours but this important job demands night work.

It's no picnic working from 11 p. m. until 7:00 a. m. and running a home besides. And bands they are nuts to let us then to have some lunatic tell our husbands they are nuts to let us out at night is insulting. Thanks for taking our part.—ANOTHER BIMBO

Dear Bim: Yours was one of many letters expressing this point of view. Interesting enough I received almost as many letters telling me I was cuckoo to defend the "bimbos"—and that unless I had worked a night shift I was not qualified to comment.

Of course some night shift gals are jollying a bit with the boys, but they'd be doing the same thing if they worked afternoons.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 22 and the mother of two small children. My husband and I have had numerous arguments about my attending baby showers, and an occasional club meeting in the evening. I usually stay home to avoid a fight.

I'm tied to the house all day because we can't afford help. The only opportunity I have to get out is when I attend a shower or a club party. I would be satisfied with one evening out every three weeks.

He thinks nothing of going fishing with his friends on his days off, because he says a man has to "unwind." But he doesn't see why a woman needs a change of scenery.

I'm becoming irritable and resentful. I scream at my kids and feel like a prisoner in my own home. Can you help me?—IN-CARCERATED

Dear Incarcerated: You should have your night out every three weeks plus one evening out together at least once every other week.

A sitter is a bargain compared with the cost of a nervous breakdown or a shattered marriage. Show this to your husband and tell him to grow up and get off the dime.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MANISTIQUE

School Valuation
Study Shows City
Low In Millage

The City of Manistique school district votes April 1 on a proposal to levy a 2-mill tax for five years to create a sinking fund for elementary school building improvement.

The district's board has issued a policy statement citing the need for a new school to replace the Lakeside building and will seek a $100,000 sinking fund to use with $105,000 now in the 3.5 mill construction fund to construct a school. A visit to the Daggett school has been made to study construction there.

A survey, to determine ability to pay, has been made by School Supt. Carl Olson, of millages available to neighboring school districts. It shows that the 11.5 mills operating revenue here is fourth lowest of 25 schools in the U.P. The information was obtained by direct letter to schools and from MEA published reports.

The district here has 7.5 mills from the allocation board and a voted 4-mill levy for operating and no construction or debt retirement levy. The highest millage in the study is for Wakefield, 25 mills, including four allocated and 21 voted; and the lowest 8.25 mills in Menominee and Calumet. Menominee has no voted millage; Calumet has 2 mills voted and 6.25 allocated.

Only four districts had voted levies for building and site funds—Iron Mountain 2, Negaunee 2, Iron River 1, and Stambaugh 5. Those with debt retirement levies were Newberry 5, Rudyard 9, St. Ignace 11, Munising 2.5, Gladstone 9.8, Iron Mountain 1.43, Ishpeming 4.11, Marquette 3.88, Stephenson 6.5. The Escanaba figures were not included, except the total, 14.7 mills.

The Manistique district ranks 17th in valuation behind each student, with $263 for all students and $10,418 when computing on the basis of non-tuition students only. The low is $1507 at Rudyard and the high $23,372 at Iron River.

Free Methodist—10 a.m., Sunday School; 11 a.m., Morning worship; 7:30 p.m., Evening service; Wed: 7:30 p.m., Prayer Service.—Rev. L. D. Coxon, minister.

Honorary pallbearers, Knights of Columbus members were Wesley Turan, Jerome Gregurash, Charles Blair, Conrad Jahn, Fred Lesica and Robert Hewitt. Active pallbearers, members of the Knights of Columbus were: Charles Havlichek, John Weber, Fred Hinkson, George Dupont, George Mathews and Adam Heinz. Burial will be in spring in Lakeview cemetery under the direction of Messier-Broulliere Funeral Home.

Hospital

Patients admitted to Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital are Mildred McGahan, Curtis; Adele Graham, 165 River; Maryett Galt, 829 Manistique; George Jarvis, Thompson; William Swanson, 110 Pearl; Jacob Toennesen, Oak St.; George Gouin, Rte. 1; Eleanor Gierke, Rte. 1. Discharged are Lottie Beloungue, Sig Anderson, Emily Stettner, Anna Strehl, Betty Schnurer and infant.

The easiest items to move are household utility equipment—mixers, beaters, pots, pans, molds, chafing dishes, snack tables, place mats, rakes, shovels, leaf removers.

The prized item in this couple's sale was a 1790 convex English mirror in excellent condition, worth perhaps $1,000 and priced at $150. It finally sold at $125.

A collection of 30 old horse brasses was sold for $50. When available at antique shops, these bring from $7.50 up.

A prized painting of a mare and her foal thought to be a George Stubbs didn't move at all and was given to a neighbor. The owners felt they would rather give it to a true admirer than sell it cheap to someone who just wanted to fill up wall space.

An 18th Century English watercolor of a gentleman priced at $50 didn't sell at all. Two watercolor landscapes at $25 each, a handsome old hunting print at $50 and a collection of Staffordshire dogs, cats and pitchers were passed by.

Why didn't they realize a better return on authentic antiques and paintings?

"With all the problems of a house closing, packing to move abroad, and organizing other things, there just wasn't an opportunity to sell the objects in their proper atmosphere," say these homeowners.

If they had it to do all over again, they would have: Taken the English paintings and mirror to someone who would have understood their value.

Invited dealers to visit the house before the dealers took off for warmer climates.

Advised for local sale only those items that neighbors absolutely need, including extra beds, china, kitchen equipment, lamps, end tables.

They would have begun selling some objects even before the house was sold.

When You Sell
Your Furnishings

(P) Newsfeatures

If you are planning to dismantle a home, give yourself plenty of time.

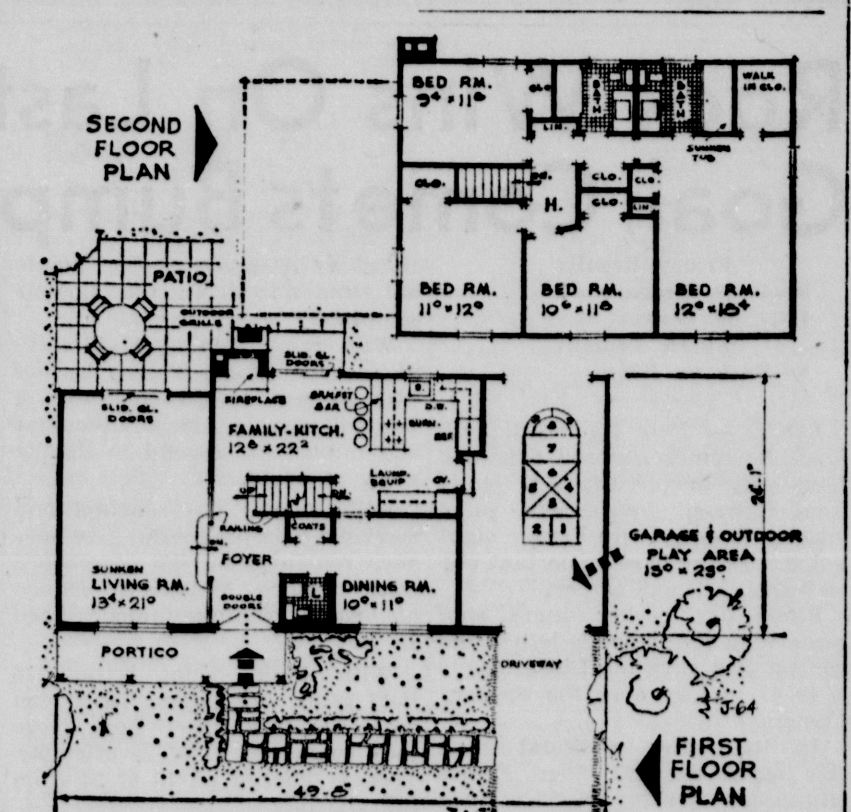

Sell the house and furnishings as early as possible, even if you must do a short-term rental of a furnished home before you make your move to a new locale.

That's the advice of one couple, who found their enchanted cottage didn't have the sale-appeal they thought. And when it came to unloading furnishings, though they began two months before they moved, there just wasn't enough time to realize a good return on some worthwhile objects.

The sale proved to them that items that one thinks will move easily often are the last to go, and for far less than their worth in some instances.

They found that winter is not a good time to sell cars, power equipment or expensive furnishings. People are still paying off Christmas bills and are worried about taxes. Power equipment such as saws, garden tillers, lawn mowers, must be appreciably reduced to move.

Household furnishings that are priced reasonably, such as chairs, end tables, coffee tables, lamps may be sold at once. Slip-covered club chairs were priced at $10, straight backed with cane seats at $8 and lamps, $7. A brand new coffee table with leather top, bought for $60, went for $20 to newlyweds, but an antique mahogany drop-front desk with 20 pigeon holes, drawers and other compartments was passed up many times before it brought $40. Ditto a French black onyx and bronze dore clock, an antique that was finally reduced to $25.

Floor Plans: The lower level contains 860 square feet of living area and the upstairs 925 square feet. Overall width is 49'8" and overall depth 30'. The living room is two steps below the first floor level.

House of the Week

Living Room On Side

Classic Early American: This four-bedroom two-story model features a living room on the side, blended into the structure through a handsome arched portico. The garage is subordinated in looks only; it stretches the full depth of the house, has a second overhead door at the rear, and doubles as a sheltered play area.

By JULES LOH

When a real estate ad specifies "two-story house with attached garage" it usually means a house with a box-like structure stuck perfunctorily onto the side without much concern about architectural symmetry.

In today's House of the Week, however, the garage is subordinated and in its customary side position is the living room—not "attached," but blended smoothly into a handsome colonial facade.

An arched portico, which adds to the early American flavor, further draws attention away from the garage door and provides a horizontal line which contributes to the appearance of length.

The house was designed by architect Herman H. York, whose eye for external beauty is only one facet of his craftsmanship. The interior layout likewise reflects awareness of the problems of modern living and the architectural know-how needed to solve them.

To illustrate, the emphasis in the living area of this house is clearly on the kitchen, the place that always draws a crowd, especially in a large family. This family room-kitchen, with its large fireplace and ample space, is mildly reminiscent of early New England.

The kitchen is centrally located to serve the dining room, family room and outdoor patio, is convenient to the garage, the rear service entry and the basement stairs, has its own breakfast bar, affords supervision of both indoor and outdoor play areas, and has a step-saving U-shaped work zone completely free of all traffic.

The formal living room, stretching 21-feet from front to back, is as glamorous as the informal area is functional. It is two steps below the level of the rest of the first floor and has sliding glass doors leading to a rear patio.

Upstairs, four roomy bedrooms and two full baths are arranged with a minimum of hall space, a maximum of closet space, and excellent ventilation.

Over-all width of the house is 49'8" and its depth, including the portico, is 30'. The first floor contains 860 square feet of living area and the upstairs 925 square feet. It is design number J-64 in the House of the Week series.

Additional Details
The accent throughout is on large-family living, and the garage is a good example. It has a second overhead door at the rear which adds measurably to its convenience as a storage area—and with its 23' length and 13' width there is plenty of room for storage.

York says at his own house the garage seems to be used for everything except the car, so he designed this one to double as a sheltered play area, complete with hop scotch layout painted on the floor. The main entry features paneled double doors, and both the dining room and living room have mullioned double hung windows. The foyer is roomy, with the coat closet removed from front door congestion. An attractive open railing separates the foyer from the living room, and a powder room lavatory is on the other side of the foyer, centrally located for the entire downstairs.

The rear patio is designed as a part of the house itself, with a built-in barbecue grille sharing the fireplace chimney. Don't overlook the front portico as a second outdoor area.

Eskymos Trim Soo; Redmen Finals Foe

Finals Tonight
8:30 - Escanaba vs. Marquette

MARQUETTE — With one eye on the personal foul column and the other on the scoreboard clock, Coach Harold Johnson guided his Escanaba Eskymos to a 59-47 triumph over Sault Ste. Marie in a Class A district basketball tournament opener at Northern Michigan College Friday night.

In the second half of the semifinal action, Marquette belted Menominee 92-70, for the right to face the defending Eskymo champions in tonight's title game at 8:30. Undeafened Champion meets Negaunee St. Paul in a Class D title tilt in the opener at 7.

Although the Eskymos opened 12-5 daylight between them and the Blue Devils in the first period, Johnson had already started a close study of the personal foul situation. What he saw was not encouraging.

Wally Schultz and Dave Hunter, who team with Ken Seibert to give Escanaba its major rebounding strength, each had three personal fouls. Both were benched and Johnson called on Mike Kositzky and Howard Porath as replacements.

Subs Come Through
Escanaba was unable to spread its margin in the second period but Kositzky chipped in five points and Porath made his presence felt in the rebounding department. The half ended with Esky leading 24-20.

Hunter returned to action but drew his fourth personal early in the third period and Seibert joined the act with his fourth foul midway through the quarter. But the Eskymos were stretching their lead steadily through the stanza with guards Jim Almonroeder and Ron Gauthier carrying the scoring burden. They led 45-36 entering the finale.

Controlling the rebounds even after Seibert fouled out midway in the fourth, the Eskymos slowed it down and shot only when they were certain of hitting. Schultz and Gauthier drove in for layups and Almonroeder hit a field goal and a free throw in the final two and a half minutes of the game.

Soo's hopes were dimmed considerably when John Lutz drew his fifth personal foul in the fourth quarter. He had paced the Blue Devils in scoring with 15 points.

Free Throws Help
Almonroeder took scoring honors with 19 points and teamed with Gauthier for a total contribution of 31 from the guard spots. Soo had three double figure scorers with Dennis Porter hitting 11 and Jody Kline 10 behind Lutz's 15.

The Eskymos used the free throw line as a major weapon, pumping in 23 of 30 shots off 20 Soo personals. The Blue Devils converted 13 of 22 attempts from 18 Esky fouls.

Escanaba had an edge of one field goal, hitting 18 of 46 for 39 per cent. Soo had 17 of 50 for 34 per cent.

The victory was Escanaba's 15th in 17 starts. The two defeats were suffered at the hands of the Marquette Redmen.

ROCK — Pete Rabideau, 5-10 Rock sophomore, scored only one field goal in the Class D semifinal district tournament game against Trenary here Friday night but it was the most important one of his high school career.

Rabideau's corner jump shot came with five seconds left in the contest and gave the Little Giants a 49-47 victory over the Trenary Comets.

In the other semifinal clash last night the tall Eben Eagles eliminated Perkins 68-53. Rock and Eben meet tonight at 8 for the district crown and the right to advance to the split regional tourney at St. Ignace next week.

Rock and Trenary hooked up in a thriller on the Little Giants' floor before a packed house. Coach Steve Ellis' Trenary cagers took command early in the game and led 13-7 at the end of the first period. Rock rallied to square the count at halftime, 23-23.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Odds makers in this legalized gambling center figure the Detroit Tigers have a very slim chance of winning the American League pennant this year.

Groleau Scores 41 As Nahma Cops Title

MANISTIQUE — One of the greatest scoring machines in Upper Peninsula high school basketball history put on a demonstration of his abilities here Friday night as the Nahma Arrows defeated Garden 62-47 for the Class D district tournament championship.

Pat Groleau, 6-5 junior center on Coach Owen Peterson's team, slammed in 18 field goals and five free throws for 41 points.

Groleau, who has scored 80 points in his two tournament starts, boosted his season total to 649 and his average to 32.45.

The Arrows needed every bit of Groleau's basketball artistry to fight off the determined Jets who stayed within two points of Nahma into the fourth period.

Groleau's fabulous shooting—he hit on 18 of 37 field goal attempts—was matched by his tremendous rebounding efforts. He cleaned the boards for 27 rebounds to give the Arrows a 53 to 36 edge in that vital department.

The Arrows started with a bang and led 13-6 at the end of the first period and 33-21 at the half.

But Coach Dave Pelletier's Jets put a blanket on Groleau and held Nahma to five points in the third frame, cutting their deficit to 38-36 at the three quarter mark.

Groleau, who failed to score a point in the third, zeroed in on his target in the fourth to lead the Arrows out of the woods. He collected 19 of Nahma's 24 points down the as the Arrows pulled steadily away from a 42-40 situation.

Dick Feathers was a valuable understudy for Groleau, hitting six field goals for 12 points and hauling in 17 rebounds.

Garden's scoring was well balanced with sophomore Barry Rochefort hitting 18 points, Bob Lauzon 17 and Joe Jacques 10.

As a team, Nahma hit 26 field goals and shot at a 35 per cent pace. The Arrows made 10 of 19 from the foul line. Garden registered 19 field goals, hitting only 25 per cent of their shots, and added 9 of 14 from the line.

The victory was Nahma's 17th against three setbacks and advances the Arrows to the split regional tournament at St. Ignace next week. Winners of district tournaments at Manistique and Brimley will join Nahma in action.

Democrat Meet On Constitution Raps Republicans

Democrats of the eastern Upper Peninsula lambasted the proposed new constitution for Michigan to be voted April 1 in a party review of the document today at the Sherman Hotel.

The Michigan Democratic party adopted a position in opposition to the new constitution at its recent Grand Rapids convention.

Prosecutor Russell Bradley of Menominee County, who was appointed a delegate to succeed Kent T. Lundgren when he ran for state senator late in the constitutional convention, keynoted this morning's session with an attack on the document as a Republican instrument.

He said that the Democratic Party, the Association of Township Officers, the Association of Justices of the Peace, the Good Roads Association and other groups in opposition to the new constitution would document their opposition and point out dangers in the new document.

"The Republican majority of delegates adopted this proposed constitution over the bitter and vehement opposition of a third of the convention," charged Bradley. "Forty-five delegates found themselves compelled by constituencies to reject the fruits of 7 months of labor. These 45 represented as many people as the 99 who constituted the majority."

Bradley charged that George Romney, who had a program of legislative reapportionment on population basis, ending the stalemate between legislature and governor, fiscal reform and strengthening the executive branch, had considerable support from moderate Republican delegates at the constitutional convention.

Their views were shared quite largely, said Bradley by Democratic delegates and in the opening weeks of con-con it seemed a bipartisan progressive sentiment might prevail, but "arch conservative D. Hale Brake found it necessary to play his trump card and Romney was nominated governor and a Brake's ideas on Michigan constitutional law were given full sway. Romney was not heard arguing for a graduated income tax, democratic legislative redistricting or anything much. He took the campaign trail; debate was meaningless."

Bradley attacked the search and seizure clause of the constitution as a contradiction of the U. S. Constitution and a yielding to pressures by prosecutors and police officials.

He attacked the proposed residence clause for voting — to be determined by the legislature — as a means by which big city voters in a mobile population could be disfranchised by requiring an extended residence.

He attacked the subjection of cities and villages' ad valorem taxing powers to legislative permission but granting them unlimited power to levy other taxes, subject to legislative restriction, as an invitation to tax consumers.

He charged three serious incursions into civil service security for state workers:

1. No pay raise could be given without the governor's approval and put it in his budget.

2. The legislature could veto raises. (Only by a difficult two-thirds vote in both houses, which would mean that only bipartisan action could effect it and that practically it could be vetoed only in time of crisis.)

3. Appointive officials have the power to create and abolish positions without approval of the Civil Service Commission.

Panelists at today's meeting also included Economic Prof. Carmen Della Quadri of Michigan Tech, Hubert Mather, Baraga County prosecutor; Andrew Wisti, Houghton County Democratic chairman.

Ticketed For Minor Mishap

John M. Harrison, 21, of Rte. 1, Gladstone, was ticketed by sheriff's officers for violation of the basic speed law, too fast for conditions, following an accident at 4 a. m. today on Electric Ave. in Wells, about 200 feet north of the entrance to the City Electric Plant.

According to officers, Harrison, traveling south, had just rounded a curve in the road when he struck an icy spot in the road. He lost control of his car, traveled 120 feet and went across the road into the ditch. He suffered bruises and abrasions.

R. P. Bowers Taken By Death

R. Paul Bowers

R. Paul Bowers, formerly of Escanaba and Rapid River, who retired last year after a distinguished career as an educator died early today in Florida where he had been vacationing. His death was caused by a heart ailment.

Remembered in Escanaba for his work as director of music for the Public Schools and for his interest in the promotion of music in the community, Mr. Bowers resigned as music director in 1945 after serving the schools in that capacity for 16 years. For 10 years he was director of Orpheus Choral Club. He was also director of the choir of the First Methodist Church.

Mr. Bowers came to Escanaba from Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, where he taught for eight years in Iowa Wesleyan College.

He accepted the position of Rapid River superintendent of schools in 1945 and served there until 1949. During that period the school district was reorganized to include Ensign, Masonville and Bay de Noc Townships.

Leaving the Rapid River superintendency in 1949, he became head of the schools in Bellevue, Mich., retiring there last June, when Mr. and Mrs. Bowers were honored for their service to that community.

Surviving besides Mrs. Bowers are two sons, Richard C. Bowers, Northwestern University professor at Evanston, Ill., and Robert, with Chrysler Corp. in Detroit, and five grandchildren. Mrs. Richard Bowers is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Olson of Escanaba.

The body will be brought to Bellevue, near Battle Creek, where funeral services will be held Tuesday or Wednesday next week.

U.P. State Fair Marks 35th Year

The Upper Peninsula State Fair, saluting centennial observations in Menominee County and the City of Escanaba this year, will itself mark its 35th birthday with special observance.

Photo displays of a generation of fair activity and other observance of the milestone are planned by the fair management. Because the fair's secretary-manager kept its record in his own office and none was provided at the fairgrounds by the state until early in the 1950s, records of the early years of the fair are somewhat sketchy, but a history is being gathered.

The first Upper Peninsula State Fair was held in Escanaba in 1928 and it has been held yearly except for three years in World War II. To help create the fair plant the big U-shaped cattle barn of the establishment was moved across 21st St. from the old Delta County Fair grounds to the new U. P. Fair grounds.

publicans' no. 2 man in the House, Rep. Leslie C. Arends of Illinois, announced he will lambaste the President "early and often" until he "comes clean" about what really led up to the Cuban missile crisis.

Full Story Held Back

Arends denied he had "questioned the President's patriotism," as Mansfield had accused him of doing. "All I said was the President and the secretary of defense have not been telling us, even at leadership closed door briefings, the full story about Cuba," he commented.

It was Arends' speech, sharply critical of Kennedy, made Monday in St. Petersburg, Fla., that drew the wrath of Democratic leaders.

"The whole thing must be cleaned up," said Arends. "They'll have to lay the whole thing on the line" before he and other Republican leaders will consider letting up in their drumfire of criticism on Cuban policy.

In another development, Air Force Maj. Gen. Robert A. Breidweiser told the Senate Preparedness subcommittee that Soviet MIG fighter planes in Cuba are primarily armed for defensive missions, but could be used for ground attacks.

And the Defense Department announced that no Air National Guardsman from any state but Alabama took part in combat operations in the Bay of Pigs invasion. One of the four men killed in the invasion was an Alabama Guardsman and there have been published reports that Guardsmen from other states were also involved.
